Overview

The site where the Plaza Hotel & Casino currently stands originally served as the Union Pacific train depot. The trains brought people to Las Vegas for land auctions and if travelers bought land, the cost of the train ticket was reimbursed. While the depots gave way to the hotel/casino in 1969, passenger train service continued until 1997 via the Desert Wind by Amtrak. The Plaza served as the stop-off for rail travelers on Amtrak as the station and ticket windows were connected to the hotel. This gave the hotel the distinction of being the only train station in the U.S. located in a casino. Today, the adjacent bus station still serves passengers and the rails are for freight carriers only.

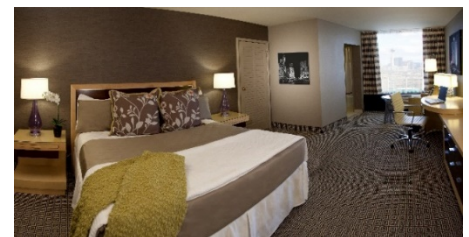

The Plaza was originally named "Union Plaza" paying homage to the Union Pacific Railroad Depot that occupied the land prior to the hotel/casino. At its opening, the Plaza was the largest downtown property at 22-stories, 504 rooms and a 66,000 sq. ft. casino. The original ownership included veteran gaming executive, Sam Boyd; attorney/casino investor, J. Kell Houssels; downtown property owner, Jackie Gaughn; and developer Frank Scott.

The site of the current glass dome once held a one-of-a-kind swimming pool, overlooking Main and Fremont Streets. Later remodeled and replaced with the Center Stage restaurant, the iconic glass dome is now home to Oscar's steakhouse.

In the 1980's, the second tower and convention center were added, making the Plaza the first downtown hotel to cater to the meetings and events market.

Ownerships and partnerships changed over the years, and in 2004, Tamares Group took over sole ownership and completed a $35 million remodel of the classic downtown property in September 2011. The majority of the interior furnishings were purchased from the Fountainbleau project which had ceased construction and included: 8,200 pieces of furniture; 1,000 light fixtures; 50,000 square yards of carpet and 300,000 square feet of marble, granite, porcelain tile and mosaics. The guest rooms are further enhanced with the legacy of the Plaza with black and white photography art.

In July 2016, after a multimillion dollar renovation, the Pool at the Plaza opened creating a rooftop pool experience unlike any other in downtown Las Vegas. A "retro Palm Springs-meets classic downtown Las Vegas" inspired outdoor space, the Pool at the Plaza offers resort style amenities, including a wet deck with lily pad daybeds, a 12-person hot tub, resort style furnishing, gaming, six private cabana suites, a new bar and the pool's own food truck. The renovations also refurbished a tennis court and added 12 Pickleball courts, making the Plaza the only hotel/casino in Las Vegas with dedicated courts for this fast growing sport. The entire renovated pool deck encompasses approximately 70,000 sq. ft., making it one of the largest in downtown Las Vegas.

The Plaza has been featured in many films, TV shows, and music videos, earning a prominent place in pop culture.
